Survivor Act Signed; Increases Benefits For 670,000 Widows, Children, Parents

The President gave his approval this week "with great satisfaction" to the $690 million Survivor Benefits Act, and the Veterans' Administration announced immediate steps to put the law into operation even though payments cannot begin prior to 1 Jan., the effective date of the Act.

The new law changes death pension benefits only for those widows and children and parents of Servicemen who die or have died on active duty or from Service-connected causes after leaving active duty. Widows of retired servicemen whose deaths are not Service-connected will not be affected by the legislation.

About 300,000 widows, 85,000 orphans and 285,000 dependent parents will get substantial increases in benefits under the terms of the Act.

Here are the big changes which the new law makes in survivor benefits.

SOCIAL SECURITY—For the first time, military personnel will participate fully in Social Security, on a contributory basis. They will pay a 2½ percent tax on basic pay (not allowances or special pays) beginning 1 Jan. Those who receive basic pay in excess of $4200 will be taxed only on the first $4200. An E-2 with over two years of service will be taxed at the rate of $2.28 per month; an E-6 with over eight years of service and an O-1 with under two years of service will be taxed at the rate of $5.00 per month; an O-3 with more than three years' service and all officers in higher

AUGMENTATION RULES

The Army's plans for implementing the Regular Officer Augmentation Act will be told in next week's Journal.

The report will include detailed instructions for officers interested in making application for the first 7,000 Regular Army appointments to be made under the Augmentation program.

Similar details on the Air Force program will be published in the 18 Aug. issue.

Congress Boosts Family Housing; Adds $1.1 Billion For 80,000 Units

A bright, new future lies ahead for military family housing.

Before it adjourned last week, the second session of the 84th Congress stamped its approval on a housing program for the Armed Forces worth an added $1.1 billion.

Included in the big building program are three separate plans which call for construction of 64,000 new units.

The first provides Government funds—approximately $80 million—for the construction of about 4,000 new Government quarters at bases in the United States.

The second allows the Services to use an additional $150 million in foreign currencies obtained from the Agricultural Commodity Program to build an additional 10,000 new housing units at overseas locations.

Both of these plans are included in the Military Public Works legislation for fiscal '57.

The third—and biggest—building plan is an extension of the present Capehart program.

In approving the Housing Act Amendments of 1956 shortly before it went home, the Congress boosted the $1.3 billion Capehart program to $2.3 billion and gave it two more years to live (it was extended from 30 Sept. 1956 to 30 June 1958).

The average unit cost of these homes
—which will be built at Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps bases throughout the U. S.—is set at $16,500.

The extended Capehart plan also gives the Services authority to buy up old Wherry housing projects for use as public quarters. In instances where new Capehart homes are built at bases where Wherry housing already exists, the Pentagon is required to purchase the Wherry units through negotiation and, if this

Adm. Radford Sees Field Leaders Deciding Service Roles; Opposes Single Service

In time of war, the roles and missions of the Armed Forces will be decided largely by field commanders.

This is the view of Admiral Arthur W.
Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Secret testimony released on 1 Aug.,
by the Senate Armed Services Subcommittee on Airpower, also gives the JCS
Chairman's opinion that the military Services are slated for reorganization into "smaller forces," and puts him on record as not in favor of a single-service, single uniform.

Here are highlights from Admiral Rad-ford's testimony:

General Counsel, Mr. HAMILTON. Coming to the question of airpower, has there been any substantial change recommended by the Joint Chiefs with respect to the change in the composition of the Air

Roles And Missions Paper Seen As Only A Peacetime Guide

From first page—

Force from the 137-wing program?

Adm. RADFORD. Not yet.

Sen. SYMINGTON. If the counsel will yield, is there any significance in that "yet"?

Adm. RADFORD. Well, it undoubtedly will come up for study. We have studies under way. We have papers that will result in some decision on the matter.

Mr. HAMILTON. And with respect to the airpower of the Navy, has there been any change in the figures, as I recall them, for 15 attack carriers recommended by the Joint Chiefs?

Adm. RADFORD. No, not yet.

AGAINST SINGLE SERVICE

Adm. RADFORD—... All over the world today, military men are trying very hard to forecast the outline or sequence of events in future wars. They have difficulty doing it because of new developments in weapons, and they have disagreements. The question that bothers me more than anything else, and I wrestle with the problem in my own mind, is what should or could we do to improve our unified organization?

I read that Mr. Finletter says a single service and a single uniform is the answer.

My personal opinion is that this would not solve anything. We could all go in the same uniform and we would still have compartmentation within this single uniform. . . . As to our military organization, we could go to a single chief of staff with an all-powerful authority exercised from the Pentagon, but unless Congress were willing to change its methods, you would still have these arguments come up to Congress.

Sen. SYMINGTON. I am not talking a single suit now, that is another thing. But don't you think it might be a good idea to consider a single Chief of Staff?

Adm. RADFORD. Well, I have thought about it. I would say that it might appear to be much easier for him, but he would continually be getting reversed and dragged up for investigations, and everything else under our system. His lot probably would be an unhappy one because he really would not have the authority that his title would imply unless we changed our system of Government.

SMALLER FORCES

Sen. SALTONSTALL. Let me ask you, Admiral, carrying that same visible deterrent one step further, you say that at the present time we have this visible deterrent based on our strength and based on

JCS CHAIRMAN FAVORS MORE PAY FOR SPECIALISTS

Admiral Arthur W. Radford, USN, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, is on record in favor of a pay raise for military technicians.

In secret testimony released this week by the Symington Airpower Subcommittee, Admiral Radford said "In my opinion we are going to have to go back to the pre-1920 system of picking out the specialists that we have difficulty holding, and then paying them more than we do pay some of the others."

He explained, "Up until 1920 we had differentials in pay for skills. In other words, you could have sergeants in the Army who got different rates of pay depending on what their specialty was. You paid more to keep a sergeant in a particular skill than you did for a sergeant in another skill."

The JCS Chairman told the Symington group that the personnel problem in the Armed Forces is the "major concern" of the Joint Chiefs and "the real problem with which the Congress has to wrestle."

Admiral Radford said the Services "probably pay many unskilled people too much and not enough to the skilled people."

He added that he does not look for any material improvement in the technician force "even with action in the next session of Congress that would help us much before the beginning of the spring of 1958."

the other statements that you have just made.

Adm. RADFORD. In certain areas of the world.

Sen. SALTONSTALL. In certain areas of the world.

Now, how do you feel about the foreseeable future—in other words 1957, 1958, 1959, and 1960, which are the years we have been using in this committee.

Our present armed strength with the plans that we have and the inventions that we are making—will that provide the same deterrent that we have at the present time in your opinion?

Adm. RADFORD. I think that there will be a change. We are moving with our atomic weapons capability toward more powerful deterrents with smaller forces. In other words, a very small force can have a very effective deterrent power, and I think we have to explain that to our allies.

Sen. SALTONSTALL. And based on your knowledge and experience as an admiral and now as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, are you satisfied with what the Defense Department and the administration are doing in that regard?

Adm. RADFORD. Yes.

Sen. SALTONSTALL. Have you any suggestions, for instance, where we should do more?

Adm. RADFORD. I think the Joint Chiefs of Staff are well aware of the problem. It is one that of necessity, we must tackle by evolution. By that I mean we cannot just overnight change our force structures and our whole concept.

I would say that to a certain extent we have already moved into this new area since 1953, that is, studied it, and I think it will be more and more apparent by 1960.

Sen. SALTONSTALL. By 1960 you say?

Adm. RADFORD. Yes. I think we will begin to move more rapidly as these new weapons come into being.

ROLES AND MISSIONS

Sen. SALTONSTALL—And in your opinion are the missions of the various services today set to the best advantage of our defense?

Adm. RADFORD. Senator, as you know, I took part in the Key West and Newport Conferences that worked up the initial agreements on roles and missions under Mr. Forrestal. I thought then and I still think that they were fine documents to start off with. They are broad statements of missions.

The roles and missions paper today, with modifications that have been made in it, is something like the Constitution of the United States. People can interpret it in different ways and we have disagreements as to what the roles and missions paper means in specific instances, and the decisions usually have to be made by the Secretary of Defense.

The roles and missions paper is a guide for the development of peacetime forces. It is supposed to guide the various departments budgetwise in their research, development, and equipment of forces.

It does not mean that a unified commander in time of war, or a commander in the field in time of war, cannot use an Army man or Army unit to do something that the roles and missions paper says the Air Force has the primary mission to do or vice versa.

It is not that kind of paper. It is only a guide in the development of peacetime forces.

In the actual conduct of war a commander will use any force that he has to do the most efficient job at the particular time and place.

Services Get New

Military Law "Bible"

A new "bible" of military law soon will be in the hands of the Armed Forces. The big volume—which was eight years in the making—was approved by the 84th Congress last week and was due to be signed into law by the President as THE JOURNAL went to press.

The 800-page "book" revises, codifies and enacts all of the mass of laws affecting the military services and the National Guard. It places the scattered military laws in one handy volume and relates each one to other laws and amendments.

Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps promotion statutes, for example, are pulled together into a single section for each Service.

Chairman Edwin E. Willis (D-La) of the House Subcommittee on Revision of the Laws, said the work "is one of the most important legislative actions of this or any other Congress."

He praised the many men and women who worked on the legislation over the years.

Here is a list of the military personnel who were associated with the work.

Law Increases Pay Of Defense Leaders

Top Pentagon officials will receive salary increases this month ranging from $2,500 to $5,000.

The biggest increases go to the nine Assistant Secretaries of Defense, and the Under and Assistant Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force. Each will receive $20,000 annually (they now get $15,000).

Here are the present salaries of members of the Defense Department secretariat and the salaries they will receive under the terms of Public Law 854 which was approved by the President on 31 July. The measure went into effect at 5:10 p. m. on that date.

Official	Old	New
Defense Secretary	$22,500	$25,000
Deputy Defense Secretary	20,000	22,500
Asst. Sec. of Defense (9)	15,000	20,000
General Counsel	—	19,000

Army-Navy-Air Force

Secretary (3)	$18,000	$22,000
Under Secretary (3)	15,000	20,000
Asst. Secretary (12)	15,000	20,000

In addition, the new law authorizes the Secretary of Defense to establish up to 120 scientific and professional positions (only 45 are now authorized) in the Pentagon, and up to 25 positions in the National Security agency to carry out research and development functions relating to national defense and military and naval medicine with salaries ranging from $12,500 to $19,000. The range has been $10,000 to $15,000.

Top salaries in GS-17 and GS-18 jobs in the General Schedule contained in section 603(b) of the Classification Act of 1949 also were boosted to $14,835 and $16,000, respectively.

"Oozlefinch Ours," 42d FA Group Replies to GM School Claim

MAJ. GEN. ROBERT J. WOOD, USA, (right) commanding general of the Antiaircraft Artillery and Guided Missile Center, Ft. Bliss, pins an "Oozlefinch" emblem on Army Assistant Secretary Hugh M. Milton II, thus inducting him into the Ancient and Honorable Order of the Oozlefinch, a model of which (Ft. Bliss version) peers between them.

RECENT announcement from the Army's Antiaircraft and Guided Missile Center, Ft. Bliss, Tex., that it had ordered the famed "Oozlefinch" back to duty there has brought a retort from the 42d Field Artillery Group, Baumholder, Germany, claiming that strange bird as its own.

A recent announcement from Ft. Bliss (see THE JOURNAL, 30 June, page 5) said that Maj. Gen. Robert J. Wood, USA, commanding general AAA and GM Center, had ordered the strange bird back to "active duty" and given him a NIKE to carry under his wing.

The Oozlefinch is a strange bird better known to the old Army than the new. It originated some years ago at the Coast Artillery Corps' club at Ft. Monroe, Va. With its large, bloodshot eyes, long scrawny neck, and body bare of feathers it is reputed to fly backwards to keep the dust out of its eyes.

A press release from Baumholder reports that Col. John S. Blair, USA, commander of the 42d FA group there, was surprised at the Ft. Bliss claim to the Oozlefinch. The Baumholder release said:

"The Oozlefinch was officially assigned to the 42d Railway Artillery Regiment on 5 Feb 1919, by a War Department Letter. In 1924, the Regiment was disbanded;

however, on 28 June 1950 the 42d Coast Artillery Regiment was reconstituted and redesignated the 42d Field Artillery Group with a complete transfer of historical lineage. At this time, the Oozlefinch was officially transferred to the new Group as its mascot, from which the 42d FA Group 'Finches' athletic teams derive their name.

"The bird is a lusty little creature of undeterminable origin. It is Artillery Red in color with tousled, clipt wings. Authorities claim that an antique watch is strapped to its left leg, symbolic of 'timely' artillery fire. Recent debates have attempted to disprove the veracity of the bird. Intensive research by noted ornithologists prompted the National Audubon Society recently to issue a mandate proclaiming the Oozlefinch 'extinct, if not totally fictitious.' However, some combat gunners of the 42d FA Group claim to have seen a small bird of similar description on the ranges where the mammoth 280 mm Guns fire. It was even observed that the bird was flying backwards to keep the dust out of its eyes, a distinct characteristic of this creature.

"The 'Nike' guided missile men may claim the Oozlefinch for their own, but members of the 42d Group are quite confident that the bird itself will not desert them. Elaborate plans are currently underway to catch and tame him."

Senate Confirms Navy JAG; Questions Officials' Faith In Selection System

Capt. Chester C. Ward, USN, has been confirmed by the Senate for appointment as Judge Advocate General of the Navy with the rank of Rear Admiral for a term of four years.

Admiral Ward is the first law specialist in history to hold the top Navy legal post.

In reporting the nomination to the floor, the Senate Armed Services Committee was critical of the manner in which the appointment was made. Although there was "no reflection on Captain Ward's character or ability," the report charges that the appointment "may create doubts concerning the faith Navy officials and the President have in the [Navy] selection system."

FULL TEXT of the Stennis Armed Services Subcommittee report on the nomination follows:

"On July 6, 1956, the nomination of Capt. Chester C. Ward, United States Navy, to be Judge Advocate General of the Navy with the rank of rear admiral for a term of four years was received in the Senate and referred to the Committee on Armed Services. In accordance with the standing rules of the committee, this nomination was not eligible for consideration until seven days had elapsed following its receipt. On July 19, a subcommittee whose members are the signatories to this report was appointed to consider the nomination. An open hearing at which the Secretary of the Navy testified was conducted on July 20, 1956.

"NO OBJECTIONS to the nomination of Captain Ward have been received by the committee. There have been no allegations, or even intimations, that Captain Ward is not qualified to fill the position to which he has been nominated. On the contrary, there was testimony that Captain Ward's performance of duty in the Navy has been outstanding, that he is highly regarded in the legal profession, and that his character is unassailable. The subcommittee finds this testimony to be true and correct.

"Despite Captain Ward's obvious qualifications and the realization that the authority to appoint a Judge Advocate General of the Navy is vested in the President, the subcommittee has paused before recommending confirmation of the nomination. The hesitation results from the knowledge that a line selection board had, within the last year, recommended for promotion to rear admiral a legal specialist other than the nominee. Of course, there is no requirement of law that the President nominate as the Judge Advocate General the officer picked by a selection board composed of military personnel.

"On occasions in the past when the committee has inquired into the nonselection of certain officers, representatives of the executive branch have been quick to point out that the selection system has withstood the test of time and that while it may not be without defects, it is the best of all practical methods for selecting from a larger group a limited number of officers who are to be promoted. Acting on these representations, the committee has approved each year literally thousands of nominations that were based on the recommendations of selection boards. Considering that the line selection board picked another officer in preference to Captain Ward, it is somewhat surprising in this instance to observe that the executive branch was unwilling to accept for a statutory office the person selected as best qualified by a board of officers senior to him.

"WE ARE INCLINED TO BELIEVE that such a practice is not good for officer morale, even though we recognize there can be no absolute rule on the subject.

"The timing of the nomination is also unusual in that the term of RADM Ira H. Nunn, the preceding Judge Advocate General, expired on June 18, 1956. The committee was informed that the selection of his successor required such care and deliberation that it was impractical for a nomination to be submitted in sufficient time that there would be no hiatus in the occupancy of this office. It is unfortunate that the selection was delayed.

"Notwithstanding the comments above, the subcommittee has had brought to its attention no sound reason for not consenting to the nomination of Captain Ward. While there may have been reasonable expectation that the person recently picked by a selection board would succeed to the position of Judge Advocate General, there is no statutory requirement or other obligation that precludes the President from appointing another person. Although this procedure may create doubts concerning the faith Navy officials and the President have in the selection system, there assuredly is no reflection on Captain Ward's character or ability and the subcommittee recommends that his nomination be reported favorably to the Senate."

Housing Progresses

From first page— fails, to acquire the projects through condemnation.

New housing units authorized under the extended Capehart program total 50,000. About 101,000 were previously authorized and contracts are going forward on these.

Here are some of the latest developments under the earlier Capehart authorization:

FORT BRAGG, N. C.—Fort Bragg is getting set to award a $13.7 million contract for the construction of 1216 Capehart units, marking the second phase of the building program at Bragg. Early in July ground-breaking ceremonies were held for the first 284 Capehart units at the base. Bids will be announced later for another 500 units to complete Bragg's planned total of 2000.

FORT CARSON, COLO.—Bids will be opened in Denver on 17 August for the construction of 500 Capehart housing units at Fort Carson, including 442 units for EM, 38 for company grade officers, 17 for field grade officers and three for generals. Meanwhile, the base set 26 March 1958 as the completion date for 440 federally financed family housing units at the base.

FORT MCLELLAN, ALA.—Fort McClellan has opened bids on the first 100 units of 300 authorized for construction at the base under the Capehart program. The majority of the units in the first increment will be for sergeants of the three top grades.

FORT LEE, VA.—Fort Lee has awarded a contract for construction of 500 units of Capehart family housing at a cost of $6.7 million. At present Fort Lee has only eight sets of permanent government quarters on the post, with 76 additional units under construction. A privately-operated Wherry housing project, with 300 family quarters, is located nearby. In addition, 332 emergency, substandard quarters are in use.

HOW TO GET INFORMATION FROM THE RUSSIANS

(From the address given by General Nathan F. Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, before the National Press Club 26 July.)

In a conversation during the visit (to Russia), I attempted to find out what the Soviets call their BISON bomber.

I said to one of their top marshals, "What do you call this airplane?" I never did get an answer.

I finally said, "We call it the BISON," and he said, "Well that is as good a name as any, let's call it the BISON."

There were many instances of reticence to divulge information. One of my party asked how far their new jet light bomber could fly. The answer was, "Not quite as far as the BADGER," which is a medium jet bomber. And then when he asked how far the BADGER could fly, the reply was, "A little farther than the other one."

These exchanges illustrate how difficult it was to get information. In another case, I commented upon the size of the engines in their turbo-prop bomber, the BEAR. These engines were huge and extended out in front of the wing a very great distance. Each engine had counter rotating propellers—which we have had some trouble with in the United States.

I asked Marshal Vershinin if these were dependable engines. He immediately went into a huddle with two other officers and they discussed my question for several minutes and finally agreed the answer was, "Yes, very dependable."

MILITARY FACES NEW TAX IN JANUARY

Servicemen and women will pay Social Security taxes next year ranging from $21.06 for the lowest pay grade to $94.50 for all those whose basic pay is $4200 or more.

Each man and woman in uniform will pay .0225 per cent of the first $4200 of his or her basic pay into the Social Security coffers.

This is the result of the new Survivor Benefits law which places all military personnel under contributory Social Security, effective 1 Jan. 1957.

The present Social Security tax of .02 per cent has been raised by new amendments to the Social Security law to .0225 per cent, also effective on 1 Jan. 1957.

Social Security benefits which military personnel receive after retirement will—under the terms of the new Survivor Benefits Act—be added to their retired pay.

Senior Army, Air Force, and Marine EMs Meet In Career Incentive Symposiums

Meetings of senior enlisted men of the Army, Air Force and Marine Corps got underway this week to formulate views for the consideration of the Cordier pay group. Two separate Navy meetings will convene next week and the following week.

First group to gather were 17 top Army non-commissioned officers and specialists picked from major commands in the United States and overseas. They met at the Command and Management School, Ft. Belvoir, Va., on 28 July.

The symposium is being held at the request of the Defense Advisory Committee on Professional and Technical Compensation to obtain direct and objective views from the Servicemen themselves.

Personnel officials at the Department of the Army anticipate that the career enlisted group will be a source of valuable material for use in developing administrative or legislative actions to strengthen the favorable aspects and correct any shortcomings of current enlistment programs.

Topics being discussed during the two-week Army symposium include: training, housing, pay and allowances, overseas tours, medical care, uniforms and insignia, recreational facilities, promotions, NCO-Specialists program, duty assignments, and family separations.

The meeting was opened with a brief orientation by representatives of the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel. The remainder of the symposium is being conducted entirely by the enlisted men themselves.

The Air Force called a meeting of senior non-commissioned officers at the Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala., on 30 July. It will continue through 4 Aug.

Thirty-five Air Force enlisted men are attending this "Project Searchlight." They represent the 11 major air commands throughout the United States and were individually selected on the basis of experience, personal character, leadership, technical qualifications in their specialties, and familiarity with the opinions of their contemporaries and subordinates. Wives were encouraged to accompany their husbands to Maxwell in order that they may contribute their views to the symposium.

Headquarters Air Force ROTC was given responsibility for coordination of the symposium. Maj. Gen. M. K. Deichmann, USAF, Commandant USAF ROTC, appointed Lt. Col. John B. O'Rourke, USAF, as project officer.

A meeting of Marine Corps NCOs was opened 2 Aug. at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., followed by a banquet the next night.

The Marine Non-Com's and their wives were welcomed by General Randolph McC. Pate, CMC.

In all, 32 NCO's, selected on the basis of experience, personal character, leadership ability and technical qualifications, were picked to represent their contemporaries. They assembled from 15 Marine Commands. At the invitation of the Marine Commandant, 26 wives accompanied their husbands.

The following is a list of the participating NCO's and their permanent stations:

In the Navy, major commands are selecting about 100 men for each of two separate meetings. One will be held at the Naval Training Center, Bainbridge, Md., 13 to 15 Aug., and the other at the NTC, San Diego, 20 to 22 Aug.

Off-Duty Education Plan Resumed By Navy

The Navy has resumed the tuition aid program for officers and enlisted men who wish to take off-duty courses at accredited universities, colleges and junior colleges.

The plan authorizes commanding officers to approve applications for courses which will lead to improved performance of duty, or contribute to qualifications for a baccalaureate degree.

Under the program, off-duty students will receive 75 per cent of the tuition fee. Aid in excess of $7.50 per semester hour or $5.00 per quarter hour, however, will not be paid by the Navy. Nor will payment for more than six semester or quarter hours be approved.

If a commanding officer approves an application, he will forward to the appropriate commandant or commander for allocation of funds. District commandants and some force commanders will be given special allotments to carry out the program within their commands.

Officers who desire to make use of the program will be required to remain on active duty for two years after completion of courses. Enlisted men must have enough obligated time to complete a course of study.

Complete details are contained in BuPers Instruction 1560.10.

themselves, each receiving his proportionate share of savings effected by the end of the year. It has proved itself to be the best and most inexpensive insurance for Service personnel. USAA is managed entirely by Armed Forces officers and is now one of the ten largest reciprocal auto insurance institutions in the United States.

Originally, United Services provided insurance for automobiles only, but as a convenience to members additional protection was extended to provide fire, theft, and transportation coverage for household goods and personal effects in a floater service policy. Another attractive feature of the annual floater policy is that it covers fire damage, even cigarette burns, and smoke or water damage caused by fire or lightning. Your goods are covered while in storage, in transit; protected against burglary, pilferage, larceny, holdup, and embezzlement. This policy is valid not only within the United States, its territories and possessions but in various other countries as well. To be assured of continuous protection a member may authorize automatic renewal with the Association.

Since automobile insurance rates vary in different localities, it is necessary to keep the company informed as to the permanent location of your car so that correct rates can be applied to the policy. The coverages offered are: bodily injury, property damage, medical payments, comprehensive (fire, theft, wind-storm, glass breakage, etc.), and collision.

INCOME TAX

It is a common and erroneous belief in civilian circles that Service personnel are exempt from taxes. Under the present federal personal income-tax law a husband and wife may file a joint income-tax return. If the wife has an income from any outside source, she must keep an accurate record of sums received, with the date of receipt and source of such income.

Reprinted by permission of Harper & Bros., publishers of THE MARINE CORPS WIFE, by Sally Jerome and Nancy Shea.

Thanks to the authors and publishers of MARINE CORPS WIFE for so ably telling our story.

Over quarter million members of the USAA, in every branch of the service, or retired, are already enjoying the thorough coverage and liberal savings offered by USAA. Over 7 million dollars were paid in dividends to policy owners last year and liberal dividends have been paid to members ever since USAA was organized 34 years ago. Only preferred risks are insured by USAA, the oldest, largest and strongest non-profit insurance organization serving the armed forces officer.

So wherever you serve—in the air, on land or sea—take advantage of the inexpensive protection a USAA policy affords. Insure today—with USAA.

A USAA policy will cover you in the United States, its possessions and territories; Canada, Cuba and the Canal Zone; Japan, the Philippines and certain U. S. military bases in the Pacific, in addition to Western Continental Europe. Claims are settled promptly even in the most remote places.

USN Announces Quotas For Two OCS Classes

The Navy has set quotas for Class No. 30 of the Officer Candidate School, Newport, R. I., which convenes 22 Oct.

At the same time, changes on Class No. 29 quotas were announced. The quota for the General Line will be 865 rather than the previously announced 721. The Line aviation quota has been revised downward from 265 to 121, and 43 of these will be preselected for intelligence duties.

Navy Uniform Shop Offers New Fabric

The U. S. Naval Uniform Shop, Brooklyn, N. Y., is accepting orders for officer's service dress khaki tropicals made of a newly available fabric. Each uniform costs $45.

The new blend is comprised of 70 per cent wool and 30 per cent dacron. Lighter in weight than cloth used in the present uniform, the material offers greater crease and stain resistance. The dacron was added to increase the wearing qualities and strength of the cloth without detracting from the inherent properties of wool.

The cloth's characteristics permit more economical manufacturing methods.

In the experimental stage is a second type of material which, some believe, will offer even greater advantages. This type is made up of 65 per cent dacron and 35 per cent viscose.

Navy Offers Free Nursing Education

A new subsidized nursing education program has been opened up for WAVE hospital Corpsmen.

Those who apply and qualify will be discharged from their present enlistment and will reenlist for six years in pay grade E-3. They will then be enrolled at a civilian nursing school designated by the Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

NAVY SICK LEAVE

Commanding officers of Army and Air Force hospitals in the U.S. may now grant up to 30 days sick leave to Navy personnel.

Upon granting sick leave, the hospital's commanding officer will forward one copy of the appropriate leave papers to the Chief of Naval Personnel and another copy to the patient's commanding officer.

CMC Tours East Coast Bases; Meets With VFW

Marine Corps Commandant, General Randolph McC. Pate, departs from NAS Anacostia 4 Aug. for a tour of several East-Coast Navy and Marine installations.

His trip, which will be capped by attendance at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Encampment at Dallas, Texas, on 13 August, includes an inspection of the Marine Corps Base, 2d Marine Division and the Air Facility at Camp Lejeune, N. C. On 9 August, the General will leave Lejeune and proceed to the Marine Corps Supply Depot, Albany, Ga., for a short stopover. He will leave Albany for NAS Pensacola, Fla., on the same day. He returns to Washington on 14 August, following his Dallas stop on the 13th.

LANDING DECELERATION CHUTE brings the Navy's A3D Skywarrior to a quick stop during a test at the Los Angeles International Airport. All the Douglas A3D's will soon be equipped with the new chutes for use in ground landings.

First 'Copter Carrier Joins Pac Fleet; To Be Used For "Airphibious Warfare"

Capt. Robert W. South, USN, reporting from the Staff of the CNO, has assumed command of the Navy's first helicopter assault carrier.

Introduction of the ship into the Fleet will put the Marine Corps-developed "vertical assault" concept of waging war in the Atomic Age to practical test.

The first operations of the USS Thetis Bay will be with Marine Ground units from Camp Pendleton and Marine helicopter squadrons of MAG-36, Santa Ana, Calif.

She joins the Pacific Fleet in September. Her home port will be Long Beach, Calif.

As an aircraft carrier, she will be under the "type" command of VADM. Alfred M. Pride, USN, Commander, Air Force, Pacific Fleet, but will operate in its new mission under operational control of VADM. Carl Espe, USN, Commander, Amphibious Force, Pacific.

Converted from a WWII jeep carrier for her new role, her 20 July recommissioning marked the beginning of a joint Navy and Marine Corps effort to develop and refine doctrine, tactics and procedures for "airphibious warfare."

Mission of the new type carrier will be to launch helicopter-borne combat Marines over beachhead defenses and into enemy territory.

Fully loaded, the Thetis Bay will carry 1,000 combat-equipped Marines and a squadron of 20 troop-carrying Sikorsky helicopters. She will be capable of launching a full company of Marines, in a single wave, 50 miles beyond an enemy beachhead.

Missile Liaison

Lt. Col. Eugene Stuart Roane, jr., USMC, has been named as Marine Corps Guided Missile Liaison Officer at White Sands Proving Ground, N. M.

He replaced Lt. Col. B. H. Elliott, who was assigned to duty in Okinawa.

Something New under the Sun. It's the Bell Solar Battery, made of thin discs of silicon, an ingredient of common sand. It converts the sun's rays directly into usable amounts of electricity. The storage batteries beside the solar battery store up its electricity for night use.

Bell System Solar Battery Converts Sun's Rays into Electricity!

Bell Telephone Laboratories invention has great possibilities for telephone service and for all mankind

Ever since Archimedes, men have been searching for the secret of the sun.

For it is known that the same kindly rays that help the flowers and the grains and the fruits to grow also send us almost limitless power . . . nearly as much every three days as in all known reserves of coal, oil and uranium.

If this energy could be put to use—instead of going to waste—there would be enough to turn every wheel and light every lamp that mankind would ever need.

The dream of ages has been brought closer by the Bell System Solar Battery. It was invented at the Bell Telephone Laboratories after long research and first announced in 1954. Since then its efficiency has been doubled and its usefulness extended.

There's still much to be done before the battery's possibilities in telephony and for other uses are fully developed. But a good and pioneering start has been made.

The progress so far is like the opening of a door through which we can glimpse exciting new things for the future.

Great benefits for telephone users and for all mankind may come from this forward step in putting the energy of the sun to practical use.

L/G Johnson Honored By Nat. Guard Assoc.

The National Guard Association this week commended Lt. Gen. Leon W. Johnson, USAF, for his "outstanding performance" as commander of the Air Force's Continental Air Command from 1952-1956.

A citation was presented to General Johnson, now U.S. member of the Military Commission (NATO Group), by Maj. Gen. E. A. Walsh, president of Association. It was pointed out in the citation that the Air National Guard "accomplished significant growth and progress" during General Johnson's tenure as head of CONAC.

These will include 1100 to master sergeant and 2500 to technical sergeant.

There will also be 13,000 to staff sergeant, 26,500 to airman first class and 23,500 to airman second class.

Promotions will be made four times a year. The next advancements will be for 1 December.

AF Reorganizes Top Finance Set-Up, Denver Center May Get New Name

The Air Force has reorganized the Offices of the Comptroller, consolidating under one head the Directorate of Accounting and Directorate of Finance. Functionally, the Directorate of Accounting heretofore has been responsible for developing procedures and maintaining the appropriation and proprietary accounts of the Air Force, while the Directorate of Finance has been primarily charged with the responsibility of paying the Air Force bills, such as, payments to contractors and military personnel.

Maj. Gen. Walter I. Miller, USAF, former Director of Accounting, has been designated as the Director of the new Accounting and Finance office, Maj. Gen. John R. Gilchrist, USAF, former Director of Finance, has been designated as the Assistant Comptroller for Financial Matters in an advisory capacity to the Air Force Comptroller, Lt. Gen. Manuel J. Asensio, USAF.

General Gilchrist, in addition, continues in his capacity as Commander of the Air Force Finance Center at Denver, Colo. The Finance Center may ultimately be renamed in consonance with its expanded responsibilities.

JUNE PILOT

First Lt. Joseph G. Kondracki, USAF, Turner AFB, Ga., earned June pilot-of-the-month honors in SAC for his precision handling of an F-84F during an emergency wheels-up landing.

After all attempts to extend and lock his left landing gear had failed, the lieutenant "sledded" his aircraft in safely on a 50-foot wide strip of Foamite.

Within tiny labyrinths of circuitry like this, AUTONETICS engineers have placed the ability to compute and act on information at speeds beyond man's limits.

Why man needs an electronic intellect to act faster than his brain can think

Not so long ago a slide rule, an adding machine, or a simple calculator were all that man needed to speed the application of his reasoning.

Today, because of the complexity and number of his problems—when the speed needed to solve them is beyond human limitations—he has had to create electronic servants that can compute, decide and act for him faster than his brain can think.

For 10 years the engineers at AUTONETICS—a Division of North American Aviation, Inc.—have been designing and developing these electro-mechanical stand-ins. Into them is built the power to interpret, translate, remember, and digest myriad data...at speeds and in quantities never before dreamed possible.

Daily—at AUTONETICS—this advanced art is pushed even further. Complete capability in both analog and digital techniques is constantly being applied in design studies and flight testing...as well as in integral parts of complete automatic systems—autopilots, autonavigators, armament controls and other automatic controls.

If you are interested in more detailed information—as an engineer or businessman—please write: AUTONETICS, Dept. J-5, 12214 Lakewood Blvd., Downey, California.

Substandard Shut-Out. It can be taken for granted that the Defense Department next January will waste no time in advocating enactment of a bill to remedy the injustice which must continue in effect for some 35,000 military families. These are the people who are forced to occupy substandard government quarters, but who must forfeit their total rental allowances.

As was reported exclusively in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, legislation to correct this situation was approved by both the House and Senate, but was not sent to the White House because differences in the bill as voted by the two legislative groups were not settled. The detailed account of how legislative maneuvering to achieve increased benefits for Service families unexpectedly backfired makes an interesting legislative story, but the fact remains that the Government will continue to gouge thousands of military people with full rental charges for facilities which are inadequate—some of them labeled by Members of Congress as not being fit for animals.

What's done is done and there can be no further action until the new Congress convenes. In view of the President's expressed interest in this problem, we can only anticipate that the Defense Department, having sustained the surprising last-minute defeat on its proposal, will submit new legislation as soon as the 85th Congress convenes and will press for quick action.

Dependent Care. A great responsibility will rest upon the Committee which Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson will soon appoint to advise him on the carrying out of the insurance, medical service and health plan sections of the Dependents' Medical Care Act recently signed into law. As reported on the opposite page, the Secretary has asked for recommendations from a number of professional organizations and the insurance industry. The Secretary, of course, will not be bound to appoint the men suggested by these groups. We hope and urge that these organizations will suggest representatives who are known to be in full agreement with the objectives of the act. The new law is designed to attract and keep career officer and enlisted personnel. To do this its provisions must be executed with a sympathetic attitude toward those whom it proposed to benefit.

Associated For Defense. The 1956 convention of the Air Force Association at New Orleans, as reported in on-the-spot stories in this issue, is calling sharp attention to the urgent requirement for the United States to maintain airpower supremacy. Current problems confronting the Air Force, notably those relating to procurement and retention of outstanding commissioned and non-commissioned officers, are being brought to public notice. The result will be a greater understanding of atomic age airpower and its specialized needs. Such increased understanding will mean much in the year ahead in gaining for the Air Force the support it must have to fulfill its mission.

This support will not be measured exclusively in budget support, although this aspect is primary, of course. Beyond the need for adequate appropriations, the Air Force, as all the other Services, must have widespread public cooperation, so that there will be proper recognition for the job that military people are doing and also an appreciation of why there must be some inconveniences for the public, such as jet engine noises.

The Air Force Association, with its steadily increasing membership, is carrying on a fine tradition in which there has been a joining of hands by patriotic civilians and the Armed Forces in the interests of National Defense. The Navy League throughout the past decades has fought

In the Army, the emphasis during past years has been more on branch support than in a single association. Thus, the Quartermaster Association, the Armor Association, etc., achieved major prominence. This is changing so that we are now seeing the development of a strong Association of the

No Navy Male Nurses?

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In August of 1955 President Eisenhower approved a bill H.R. 2559. This bill authorizes male nurses and medical specialists to be appointed as Reserve Officers in the Armed Forces. The Army and Air Force thus far have been commissioning qualified men nurses to help alleviate the existing shortages. The legislation as enacted provided permissive authority to appoint male nurses as commissioned officers in the Reserve components of the Armed Forces of the United States. Why the Navy has not taken advantage of this legislation is not known.

I am at present in the Navy on active duty as an HM 2 stationkeeper. In devoting 12 yrs. to Navy life I have hesitated changing services assuming that the Navy in the near future would start giving men nurses commissions in the Reserve components. I have originated letters to BuPers and BuMed seeking information relative to the commissioning of men nurses in the Navy. It has been seven months since I have written to them without a reply which can only mean that nothing is contemplated for men nurses to date.

Senator Ives (R-NY) has sponsored a bill to create a U.S. Academy of Nursing to help alleviate the shortage of nurses. This would be excellent if it accomplishes the purpose for which it is intended. It leaves a few questions in my mind, namely, have all avenues of nurse recruitment been explored? Just how attractive a career is nursing in the service for nurses (female)? For men it would be excellent but it would still take a good deal of publicizing to point out the advantages of a service career.

On the strength of the Army and Air Force giving men nurses commissions, enrollment for the schools having men should be on the increase. To create more schools for men to go into the nursing profession or to open more schools on a coeducational basis in those schools not having men would be far easier and less costly than creating a U.S. Academy of Nurses. In cooperation with the American Nursing Association the services could contact the various schools and with Federal aid conduct a survey as to the feasibility of adding a program for nurses in their curriculum.

THE JOURNAL has done an excellent job in reporting the coverage of the commissioning of men nurses in the Army and Air Force. I look forward each week to reading it with the hope that some news as to the commissioning of men nurses in the Navy would be coming forth.

If any of your readers can give me a course of action to follow as to how I can go about getting information relative to the commissioning of men nurses in the Navy or, how I can transfer from the Navy as an enlisted man to commissioned status in the Air Force I would indeed be grateful.

Men in the nursing profession are in a minority group and for this reason it is difficult to obtain the same privileges that our female counterparts enjoy. To list a few of U.S. Army, intended to present the overall Army viewpoint. This group also is seeking wider and wider civilian membership, as was wisely done by the Navy League and the Air Force Association. In fact, the Navy has just advised its field commands of a new membership effort by the Navy League and the desirability of giving it enthusiastic support.

We agree that such enthusiastic support should be given. The Services urgently need as broad a base of public understanding and support as possible. National Defense is enhanced by such meetings as the AFA's convention in New Orleans and by similar state and regional sessions throughout the year. Here is expressed the fact that in the United States, National Defense is everybody's business and everybody wants to understand its progress, its present status, and the problems that must be solved—especially those of money and manpower—to safeguard freedom.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—Eighth Fleet exercises conducted recently under Admiral Marc A. Mitscher substantiated the wartime finding that replenishments at sea can best be expedited through the use of unit loads, and indicated a need for a new type of stores ship—a multiple-issue vessel that can carry every class of stores except munitions and fuel.

50 Years Ago—The officials of the Pension Office think they have discovered in Lyston D. Howe, of Streator, Ill., the youngest volunteer of the Civil War. He enlisted in 1861, when only ten years nine months old, and served for four months, when he was discharged on account of his youth. He enlisted again in 1862, when eleven years and five months old, and served until the end of the war.

90 Years Ago—The war news of the week from Italy is confined to the mountain operations of Garibaldi and an important naval engagement off Lissa, on the coast of Dalmatia. The Italian fleet had been lying inactive at Ancona, and had not cooperated in the operations against Venetia, as it had been expected to do. The reason for this inactivity was that the fleet was poorly manned, and in other respects not ready for offensive movements.

Retired Tax Relief

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Tax cut for retired missed the boat almost entirely. It is a gift to retired top grade commissioned officers only since they are the only ones who receive enough retired pay to actually retire. The junior officers, warrant officers and all enlisted men receive hardly enough to feed a family these days much less cover all expenses, and these are forced to find full or part time employment. If they manage to earn one hundred dollars a month they then find themselves without any tax deduction or consideration whatsoever. Let us permit those enjoying this deduction to continue enjoying it because they have earned it, but please consider the facts and give the tax relief to all.

Survivor Act OKs Increased Benefits For 670,000 Service Widows, Children, Parents

grades will pay the maximum tax which is $94.50 annually.

Social Security will provide monthly income for a widow with children, for children alone, for a widow at age 62 to 65, or for dependent parents, and will also provide an income (in addition to his retired pay) for the Serviceman who survives to age 65.

The Social Security payments for widows, children and parents also are in addition to payments which they will receive from the Veterans Administration under the terms of the Act.

The amount which a Serviceman receives from Social Security after he reaches age 65, or the amount his widow and children receive if he dies on active duty from a Service-connected cause is based on the "average monthly wage" the Serviceman received. The resultant income for a widow with two children can be as much as $200 per month.

The benefits which would be payable to the survivors of a sergeant with over six years of service, under Social Security alone, assuming he is survived by a widow and two children, and assuming that the claim is made on 30 June 1957, would be approximately $134 per month. This is reduced to $108 per month when the oldest child reaches the age of 18. All payments cease under Social Security when the youngest child reaches age 18. Social Security payments to the widow recommence when she reaches age 65; she will then receive $54 per month for the rest of her life. Under the new Social Security amendments just enacted, she could elect to receive a reduced benefit at age 62.

Because Social Security benefits are based on the Serviceman's "average monthly wage," the benefits payable will vary with his basic pay, but generally will increase with promotions through the years. Previous earnings from civilian employment may also be used to determine the "average monthly wage."

The subject of Social Security is complicated and will necessitate additional articles in THE JOURNAL in the future to give Service families a better understanding of the benefits which are available from this source under the new Survivor law.

The Social Security law provides that total family benefits may not exceed 80 percent of a worker's average wage. Because this provision would have resulted in inadequate benefits for the family of a man who dies while still in the lowest enlisted pay grades, the new Survivor law provides special increases in benefits from the V. A. for children of those whose average wage was less than $160 a month. This special increase is $25 per month, per child.

Also, under the Social Security law a worker is not covered for survivors' benefits until he has been under the Old Age Survivor Insurance system for at least six quarters (18 months). In order to take care of the survivors of young Servicemen who die shortly after entering the Service, the new Survivor Benefits law authorizes a V.A. payment in the same amount the Serviceman's survivors would have received had he been fully covered by Social Security.

DISABLED—The House bill originally contained a provision that any member of the Armed Forces who becomes permanently and totally disabled through a Service-connected injury would be presumed to have had the five-year coverage necessary under the Social Security Act to entitle him to be automatically insured for the rest of his life. This provision was erased by House-Senate conferees before the new law was approved in its final form.

DEPENDENCY INDEMNITY COMPENSATION—In addition to the Social Security payments, survivors also will receive a new type of monthly benefit—paid by the Veterans Administration to the widow—known as "Dependency and Indemnity Compensation."

This payment is related to the pay of the Serviceman, and is calculated at the rate of $112 per month, plus 12 percent of the basic pay of the member, if the member died on active duty or from a service-connected cause.

For example, the widow of a Pfc who had over three years of service will receive $125 per month. Similarly, the widow of a Sfc who had over eight years of service will receive $139 per month. The widow of a general officer with over 30 years' service will receive $241.17.

The monthly dependency indemnity compensation paid to the widow continues for the balance of her life, but ceases in the event she remarries. The payments are paid from date of death, regardless of whether the widow is employed, or whether she has income from any other source.

If the Serviceman is survived by a widow and children, the income for the children comes from the Social Security payment described above. There are additional provisions for children, however, as follows:

COMPENSATION FOR CHILDREN—

When there is no widow or the widow is not eligible for Dependency and Indemnity Compensation (because of divorce or remarriage) the V.A. will make monthly compensation payments to the children at the following rates: One child, $70 per month; two children, $100 per month; three children, $130 per month; and $25 per month for each additional child in excess of three. In addition, as pointed out above, children also are eligible for Social Security checks. Payments to a child normally end at age 18, but may be continued if the child is in school or is helpless.

COMPENSATION FOR DEPENDENT

PARENTS—The new law adjusts payments made to dependent parents. Under present law, a parent (or parents) receive no compensation if their personal income is over certain specified amounts. The new law prescribes payments to dependent parents on a sliding scale; the amount they receive under the Survivor Benefits Act depends on the income they receive from other sources. For example, a parent with income of less than $750 per year can receive compensation under the new law at the rate of $75 per month, but if that parent has income between $1250 per year and $1500 per year, the payment will be only $30 per month.

When both parents are dependent, the total benefit may be as high as $100 per month if their combined income is less than $1,000 per year. But, if the total income is between $1350 per year and $1700 per year, the parents will receive $60 per month.

WAR OR PEACETIME—Under the present system, compensation payments to the widow, children or parents are payable at one rate if death occurred in time of war, and at lesser rates if death occurred in peacetime. Under the new law, the rates are the same in war or peace.

PRESENT SURVIVORS—The new rates of compensation also are applicable, on a voluntary basis, to those survivors presently receiving monthly compensation benefits from the V.A. if their husbands died on active duty or from a Service-connected cause and if election of the new benefits is to their advantage.

The V.A. has prepared election forms outlining the new benefits to help present survivors decide whether to retain the old or take the new. These forms will be mailed to widows, guardians of children and dependent parents within the next 30 to 60 days. The V.A. has asked that no inquiries be addressed to its offices until after these forms are received in the mail.

The new dependency and indemnity compensation will be paid to present survivors only if they give up payments which they may be receiving from a $10,000 free life insurance policy. National Service Life Insurance and U.S. Government Life Insurance payments do not affect the right to elect the new benefits.

Survivors who currently are receiving benefits under the Federal Employees Compensation Act also would have to give up these benefits in order to qualify for the new benefits.

SERVICEMEN'S INDEMNITY ACT—

The $10,000 free insurance program (the Servicemen's Indemnity Act) is terminated by the new law.

However, the Survivor Benefits Act continues the right of veterans disabled in the Service to apply to V.A. for the five-year policy or any of the six permanent plans of National Service Life Insurance within one year from the date V.A. finds their disabilities to be service-connected.

The special five-year nonconvertible NSLI term policies, for which those now in Service have to apply within 120 days after their discharge are discontinued under the new law on and after 1 Jan. 1957. Policies now in force or issued before 1 Jan., will not be affected.

Those who waived the premium on their term insurance, or those who waived that portion of the premium on a permanent plan of NSLI or USGLI which represents the "pure risk" must discontinue such waivers before 1 May 1957 or their survivors will not be entitled to the new dependency and indemnity compensation, but will be entitled to the lower rates of compensation in effect prior to the new law.

The Pentagon plans to issue detailed instructions concerning the effect of the new law on Government-sponsored insurance and the action which it will be necessary for individuals to take.

WARNING—A provision in the law prohibits payments to any beneficiary who has assigned his interest in Servicemen's Indemnity after the date the provisions of the new act become public knowledge. No payments will be made to any such beneficiary so long as the portion of indemnity he assigned is payable to any person. This provision was designed to prevent beneficiaries from becoming eligible for the new and more generous rates of compensation by assigning their interest in servicemen's indemnity to another close relative of the deceased.

FEDERAL EMPLOYEES COMPEN-

SATION—Benefits which now accrue to survivors of active duty Reservists under the Federal Employees Compensation Act also are terminated by the new law. In repealing FECA coverage for Reservists, the new law places all components of the Armed Forces under the same Survivor Benefit legislation.

Those now receiving FECA benefits or who become eligible to receive FECA benefits between now and 1 Jan., may elect to keep such benefits or to give them up in favor of the Survivor Benefits provided by the new law.

COVERAGE FOR RESERVISTS—The new law also provides portal-to-portal coverage for all Reservists while in a travel status to or from active duty for training or inactive-duty training. This means that if a Reservist is killed or dies while en route to or returning from such training, his survivors are eligible for the benefits provided under the new Act.

SIX MONTH DEATH GRATUITY—A lump sum payment also is provided by the new law for the surviving widow, children or dependent parents to assist them in their readjustment to a new life. This payment at present ranges from a minimum of $469 to a maximum of $6857. Under the new law, the benefit is computed by multiplying all items of pay (except allowances) by six. The new minimum is $800 and the new maximum is $3,000.

LESS PAPER WORK—The new law also simplifies the administration of survivor benefits and makes it possible for

Form MediCare Group

The Pentagon is getting set to announce the membership of a new Health Plan Advisory Committee to help put the new 76 million Family Medical Care program into operation in December.

Members of military families located in areas where there are no Service hospitals or who are unable to get into Service hospitals because of space problems or other limitations are entitled to civilian hospitalization under the medical care insurance terms of the new program.

The Committee will advise Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson on the insurance, medical service and health plan aspects of the MediCare Act. The Act—Public Law 569—was signed by the President in June.

A representative of Secretary Wilson will serve as Chairman of the group and the Defense Secretary will name the other members.

Ten organizations have been invited to suggest nominees for membership on the committee. They are: the American Medical Association, the American Dental Association, American Hospital Association, American College of Surgeons, American College of Physicians, American Academy of General Practice, American College of Radiology, Blue Shield, Blue Cross, the Health Insurance Association of America, and the health and accident insurance industry.

a survivor to file only one application for all benefits. At present, survivors must file applications for such benefits with at least four separate Government agencies, often times more.

WHAT DOES THE NEW LAW MEAN

—In general, the new law provides survivor benefits which are the same in peace or war, and the same for Regulars and Reservists. Each widow of a man who dies after 1 Jan. 1957 on active duty or from a Service-connected cause after leaving active duty would receive an immediate Six-Month Death Gratuity of at least $800 and up to $3,000. This is designed to help her with her immediate expenses. In addition, she would receive a monthly payment from the V.A. (for life) of $112, plus 12 per cent of the Serviceman's basic pay (based on the latest pay scales). And, if there is a minor child or children, she would receive a further monthly payment from Social Security. This payment ceases when the youngest child reaches the age of 18 or leaves school, provided the child is not helpless. Social Security payments to the widow (in addition to the V.A. payment) would recommence under a different schedule when she reaches the age of 62 or 65, and both payments would continue for the remainder of her life.

If the Serviceman survives until age 65 he receives both his retirement check and a Social Security check.

Survivors of men who died on active duty or from a Service-connected cause before the new law takes effect are given the option of electing the new benefits in preference to present benefits. If present benefits are higher than the new rates the survivor is permitted to continue receiving the higher rate.

All Servicemen are placed under contributory Social Security by the new act. The $10,000 "free" life insurance program is dropped for those coming on active duty after 1 Jan. And, benefits under the Federal Employees Compensation Act are eliminated for all Reservists coming on active duty after 1 Jan.

Representative Porter Hardy (D-Va.), Chairman of the House Select Committee which drafted the new law, said the Act is "one of the most significant pieces of legislation since the GI Bill."

memo

THE AIR FORCE HOPES to be able to get DoD approval to announce a new speed record during the AFA convention now in session in New Orleans. Gen. Twining had the OK of the AF Dept. to make it at his National Press Club speech but the DoD did not come through. When released it will probably reveal that the Bell X-2 powered by Curtiss-Wright's variable control rocket engine was timed at about 1900 mph during a flight at Edwards AFB, Calif., piloted by Lt. Col. Frank (Pete) Everest, USAF. Previous record was set by the X1A 12 Dec. '53 when it was flown by Maj. "Chuck" Yeager at 1623 mph—less than a month after NACA's Scott Crossfield had flown the Douglas D-558-2 at 1328 mph.

THE ARMY'S NEW PROMOTION program which is seeing limited numbers of "truly outstanding" officers promoted to temporary ranks will prompt some changes in terminology by officers filling out efficiency reports. Many will take special pains to state specifically that a particular officer is "truly outstanding," whereas in the past they might have labeled him only "outstanding." Some Army officers jokingly observe that ultimately it might lead to a reporting officer's assertion that a subordinate was "really truly outstanding." THE SEMANTICS ASIDE, the new accelerated promotion plan has gained wide favor in all ranks, particularly since there will be no recommendations from the field. Central boards will screen the records of all eligibles. IN PAST PROMOTIONS, serious difficulties were encountered because different field commanders had different ideas about whom to recommend as "outstanding" for special promotion consideration.

THE ARMY'S DECISION to use the term "Strategic Reserve" instead of "General Reserve" to describe active units in the U. S. and Hawaii available for "employment at national level in accordance with current Army plans or approved emergency deployment schedules," will sharpen interest in the combat readiness of the 19 combat divisions. At present, only 14 are said to be "ready to go" outfits, including of course the 9 that are outside the U. S.—5 in Europe, 3 in the Far East and 1 in Hawaii. THIS MEANS OF COURSE that the "Strategic Reserve," counting the 25th Infantry Division in Hawaii, now includes only 6 combat-ready divisions.

THE THUNDERBIRDS, the U. S. Air Force's precision flying team now equipped with North American supersonic F-100s, is still tops with its chief. General Nathan F. Twining, AF CofS, told newsmen at the National Press Club last week that while the Soviet fighter pilots demonstrated to him a high degree of pilot skill, their acrobatics were "somewhat less complicated than those performed by our own acrobatic teams such as our Thunderbirds."

THE AIR FORCE CofS also had some word to bring back to the Navy. At the Russian Air Academy he noticed a training table set-up demonstrating an air attack on a NAVY CARRIER FORMATION. There was also a model of the USS Franklin D. Roosevelt with the name printed in English across the bow. On his return he told Admiral Burke, CNO, what he had seen. Admiral Burke asked whether the attack was high level or low level and was "interested" when General Twining told him that the Russian simulated attacks were both high and low level.

CUTBACKS IN HOUSING already are being made. The DefDept has reduced the authorization for Capehart housing at Ft. Bliss from 900 to 500. But the DoA is busy working up a reclama.

YOU CAN EXPECT the Army's intensified Reserve training program to be reflected in the adoption of an award for Reserve units similar to the Eisenhower Trophy for outstanding National Guard units.

FOR THE FIRST TIME in 15 years, the Army will be able to give substantial assistance to civilian marksmanship programs throughout the Nation. Some 13 million rounds of .30 caliber ammunition will be issued without cost, while the Navy will make available 13 million rounds of .22 caliber ammunition. The National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, headed by Assistant Army Secretary Hugh M. Milton, II, and the National Rifle Association, sparked by its executive director, Lt. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, USA-Ret., won Congressional approval for the stepped-up marksmanship assistance. General Parks, well-known in the highest Government circles, is being credited with skillful work on Capitol Hill. IT WAS NOTEWORTHY that the House Committee looking into Government information problems recently called on General Parks, former Army PubInfo Chief, for his views.

MAJ. GEN. THOMAS N. WATLINGTON of the 8th Infantry Division at Ft. Carson, Colo., has passed the word that he wants no fat men in his outfit when it moves to Germany to Gyroscopic with the 9th Infantry Division. Earlier this year, 822 men in the division were given a "fat man" classification and told to lose weight. About 500 have succeeded in slimming down to satisfactory proportions and the remainder are busy at the job—all under careful control of division doctors.

MILITARY PLANNERS surveying the results of Operation Alert are concerned over the purposeful lack of realism which prompted the play of the exercise. Though they concede readily that precautions must be taken to prevent an enemy's knowing details of our readiness plans, the argument also is being made that false conclusions may be drawn from training efforts which are not grounded in realism. THIS PROBLEM WILL RECEIVE close attention in the National Security Council during forthcoming months. It's known that President Eisenhower is enthused over the necessity for periodic nation-wide civilian defense tests. FUTURE EXERCISES, however, may be marked by greater concentration on conditions that would be created by actual start of hostilities.

THE ARMY MUST DECIDE whether to follow the Air Force into publication of an internal monthly magazine, similar to the Navy's "All Hands." The Air Force has won approval for a magazine to be called "The Airman." Its editor will be Maj. Harmon Harper, USAF, former editor of the AAF Review, who has been on the AFROTC faculty at Gove City College, Pa. The Air Force intends to print 1 copy for every 10 airmen; the magazine will be 52 pages. CALLED "A TOOL OF MANAGEMENT," the publication "will enable the Air Force to speak with a consistent voice to all concerned about the role of air power in national defense, in addition to informing its airmen readers of AF actions and policies, affecting them," a Headquarters report stated.

Guide words for today—

"The professed internationalist usually sneers at nationalism, at patriotism, and at what we call 'Americanism'. He bids us forswear our love of country in the name of love of the world at large. We nationalists answer that he has begun at the wrong end; we say that, as the world now is, it is only the man who ardently loves his country first who in actual practice can help any other country at all."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

These prophetic words of the 26th President of the United States become even more significant today as the world looks to the United States for leadership against Communist domination. The salvation of the free world depends upon a strong America. And only a free people — believing heart and soul in duty and honor to our own country — can keep America strong.

Army Signal Corps Unveils Helmet Radio

The Army Signal Corps has announced the development of a combat radio that lets soldiers talk to each other.

Like the walkie-talkie, this new radio is battle-rugged and allows two-way conversations. It was developed by the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories, Ft. Monmouth, N. J., to bring walkie-talkie communications to the individual rifleman for the first time.

The experimental helmet, which looks like a football player's headgear, contains the smallest known two-way military radio, weighing only a pound. The set was made smaller than two packs of cigarettes by use of transistors instead of bulky vacuum tubes.

To prevent enemy interception of messages at the front lines, the helmet radio is preset for short range conversations between squad members. But at a moment's notice, range can be greatly increased by attaching an auxiliary antenna to the top of the helmet.

At full capacity, the helmet can reach radios up to a mile away and can hear powerful stations at even greater distances.

The new combat FM set operates continuously for a half-day on a single set of tiny batteries.

TALKS THROUGH HIS HAT.—Forward Scout Cpl. Harry Mikus, USA, of Fort Monmouth, N. J., reports back to his squad through the world's smallest combat radio, which is built into his helmet. He talks into a thumb-sized microphone that slips easily under the helmet when not in use. The tiny hidden radio was developed by the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories. It weighs less than a pound, including batteries.

Donald Douglas Wins Transport Citation

An award for the outstanding contribution to military transportation in 1955 will be presented to Donald A. Douglas, chairman of the board and president of Douglas Aircraft Company, Inc.

Sponsored by the National Defense Transportation Association, the award will be presented by Admiral Arthur W. Radford, USN, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, at the association's annual dinner in the Utah Hotel in Salt Lake City on 17 October.

Mr. Douglas has contributed to military and civil transportation for more than a third of a century. In 1920 he founded his own company with $600 capital. Since then the Douglas company has grown to the extent that during World War II it built 30,000 military aircraft, a sixth of all military aircraft built in the United States. Today, 52 percent of the world's commercial planes are Douglas-built.

The National Defense Transportation Association is a military-civilian group of transportation leaders whose annual award was established in the interest of promoting transportation preparedness and fostering a keener realization of military transportation requirements. The Joint Transportation Committee of the Joint Chiefs of Staff selects the annual winner of the Award.

Col. Huller Heads PX Region In Atlanta

Col. Vernon W. Huller, USA, has been assigned as Atlanta, Ga., Regional Officer of the Army & Air Force Exchange Service, succeeding Lt. Col. Fred S. Florimont, USA, who is retiring.

Announcement of Colonel Huller's appointment was made by Maj. Gen. H. L. Peckham, USA, Exchange Service Chief. The Atlanta office, located at 111 Ivy St., N.E., supervises the operation of Army and Air Force exchanges in the seven-state region of Mississippi, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, North and South Carolina, and Florida.

Colonel Florimont was stricken with a heart attack earlier this month and is recuperating at the Patrick AFB Hospital, Fla. He has been serving as Atlanta Regional Officer for nearly two years.

Procurement Assistant

Col. Charles F. Fell, USA, has been named Assistant Chief of the Procurement and Distribution Division in the Office of the Chief Signal Officer.

DoD Publishes New Mobilization Register

A revised edition of the Register of Planned Mobilization Producers has been distributed to major military procurement and planning offices.

A Defense Department publication, the Register serves as the joint Army-Navy-Air Force industrial directory for planning with American manufacturers for the production of military material in the event of a war emergency.

Similar to previous editions, the new Register is classified "Confidential" but individual manufacturers may verify their own listings.

There are 21,000 producers listed.

Parachute Record

The heaviest single load ever dropped by parachute was dumped from a propeller C-130 Lockheed Hercules during a series of tests recently at the El Centro Naval Auxiliary Air Base, Calif.

A 27,000 pound dummy load of iron was dropped at an altitude of 2000 feet, and was floated to the ground by six 100-foot cargo parachutes. This was said to be a record.

In one flight, the Hercules set one, possibly two world records. It carried 18 A-22 containers, in which practically any type small shipments can be packed. The plane released these containers in a sequence which filled the skies with 18 billowing parachutes. This was numerically the largest multiple load ever dropped. Weighing a total of 29,000 pounds, it also probably was the heaviest cargo floating out of any aircraft, whether extracted by parachute or simply tilted into space from an open door.

Perhaps the world's first multiple drop of three units from one plane was made by the C-130 earlier in the tests. An M-55 gun mount, a 105 mm howitzer, and an Army jeep was lowered to the ground, a total of 14,500 pounds. Another probable mark was established with the air freighter cutting loose a combination load consisting of a road grader, weighing 19,000 pounds, and a 40 mm gun mount weighing 7500 pounds.

QM Center Name Changed

The Chicago Quartermaster Purchasing Center, 1819 West Pershing Road, has been redesignated as the Chicago Administration Center, it is announced by Col. Elmer A. Kell, Jr., USA, commander.

New Hypersonic Ballistic Missile Tests Underway; Launchings at Patrick AFB

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A NEW hypersonic missile with which Lockheed scientists are probing critical problems of the Air Force's intercontinental ballistic missile program, has been disclosed by Brig. Gen. R. R. Ostrander, USAF, assistant for guided missiles at the Air Research and Development Command.

The new Lockheed vehicle, whose designation is still classified, was revealed in a speech by General Ostrander before the Air Force Association in convention here. He described it as a "key link" in the nation's vital ballistic missile program which includes the intercontinental vehicles Atlas and Titan, and the intermediate range missile, Thor.

The Lockheed missile, rocket powered for hypersonic speeds and altitudes of undisclosed height, spearheads research into the critical problems of bringing the intercontinental ballistic missile back into the earth's atmosphere from outer space.

The missile is a product of Lockheed's

Missile Systems Division and The Western Development Division (ARDC), which has direct responsibility over all ballistic missile development for the Air Force.

"Results of our work on this project should provide long-sought solutions, heretofore unobtainable, to many mysteries surrounding outer space flight," said Hall L. Hibbard, the Lockheed Division's General Manager, commenting in Los Angeles on General Ostrander's announcement.

The test missile hurdles out through the earth's atmosphere at speeds far in excess of the velocity of sound. Within seconds after it is fired, the missile blasts through the sonic barrier and pierces the ionosphere—a layer of very thin air starting some 50 miles above the earth and extending to about 250 miles. Lockheed's missile scientists designed the vehicle to plunge at tremendous speeds from the ionosphere into the earth's heavy blanket of air.

Launchings of the Lockheed missile are done at Patrick AFB, Fla.

AF Studies New Plan For Reserve Forces, Gen. Hall Tells Readiness Problems

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

THE Air Force, anxious to get its Reserve Forces in "double A" readiness, is working on a plan in which flying units of the Reserve and Air National Guard will be trained with the commands to which they would go in event of emergency.

This was reported to the Air Force Association convention here by Maj. Gen. William E. Hall, USAF, Assistant CofS for Reserve Forces.

He revealed also that the Continental and Air Defense Commands have devised a test to use Reserve Forces units against Strategic Air Command bombers which would fly north-to-south en routes and in numbers unknown to the defenders.

General Hall, recapitulating Reserve Forces progress, noted that present war planning calls for 27 combat wings in the Air National Guard and 24 in the Reserve, plus flying and non-flying support units.

The ANG is composed of 23 Fighter-Interceptor, 2 Tactical Reconnaissance and 2 Tactical Bomber Wings, plus 4 Air Resupply Groups and 4 Air Transport Squadrons.

The Reserve includes 9 Fighter Bomber Wings, 2 Tactical Bomber Wings and 13 Troop Carrier Wings, plus 3 Air Rescue Squadrons.

RESERVE FORCES REQUIREMENTS, said General Hall, call for 202,000 officers and airmen, of which 112,000 are to be trained in the Reserve.

With the individual training programs, the total Reserve Forces manpower requirement is put at 314,000 in the AA Ready Category, who would be ready to go whenever the Air Force needs them. "That might be D-Day; it might be as much as D-plus-6 days," he said.

Outlining major problems which confront the Air Force in building the readiness of its Reserve Forces, General Hall described the lack of adequate facilities as "the controlling factor."

Plan To Complete Reorganization Of ANG Fighter Interceptor Wings Within 3 Years

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

CURRENT planning provides for completion of the reorganization of the fighter interceptor wings of the Air National Guard in about three years, Maj. Gen. Winston P. Wilson, USAF, Chief, Air Force Division, National Guard Bureau, told members of the Air Force Association in convention here.

Reorganization of individual wings, General Wilson said, will continue to take place from time to time "consistent with the USAF's ability to provide all-weather aircraft."

The program, he revealed, adds about 8,000 personnel to the ultimate authorized strength of the Air National Guard, increasing it from 83,000 to 91,000.

Eight of the 23 fighter wings and 24 of the 73 fighter squadrons already have been converted to all-weather mission capability, he reported.

"These eight wings," General Wilson said, "have been reorganized to conform to the Air Defense Group structures consistent with our policy of paralleling, where possible, the structure of like-type units of the Regular Air Force."

"Under this reorganization, the Fighter-Interceptor Wing Headquarters are retained but as Air Defense Wing Headquarters. The major change occurs at those bases which previously had either an augmented squadron, or a squadron together with its wing-base support units. In their stead, there is authorized a Fighter Group (Air Defense) composed of a Group Headquarters, a Materiel Squadron, an Air Base squadron, and an Infirmary, in addition to the tactical squadron or tactical squadrons on the base."

The eight tactical wings reorganized during the last quarter, General Wilson said, implement "a program for 16 such conversions which will extend through October 1959."

Pilot training has been one of the highlights of the past fiscal year, the General reported. The objective was to produce 350 graduates from pilot training and to place 546 officers and cadets in pilot training. Both objectives were exceeded, so that by the end of June there were approximately 700 officers and cadets in training—the greatest number at any one time since the start of the program.

Also, he said, "we are starting to show some progress in licking the observer problem. We are picking up observers at the rate of 10 to 15 a month and we now have over 110 trainees in observer school. It is our objective to put observer training on the same sound footing as the Air National Guard pilot training program."

Russians Stress Reserve Programs

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

(Soviet Russia understands the need of strong Reserve forces in her military organization "and is doing something about it," Maj. Gen. William E. Hall, USAF, Assistant CofS for Reserve Forces, declared here this week. In an address to the Air Force Association, General Hall gave this report on the Reserve in Russia.)

THERE is no organized reserve in the USSR in terms of specific numbered reserve units. However, all officers and enlisted men who have been released from active duty in the Air Force are reserves and are subject to recall in an emergency. A large number spend two weeks of refresher training in the summer.

THE USSR IS DIVIDED into military districts, each of which has a number of registration offices which maintain records of all eligible males in the area. Recall to duty is based on quotas by a branch of service levied on each military district.

An important element in the USSR's reserve picture is the all-union voluntary association for cooperation with the Army, Aviation, and the Fleet, which is known by its abbreviation DOSAAF.

This organization contains a large number of pilots, engineers, and other types of military specialists who serve as instructors for youths who take pre-military training at DOSAAF installations. The teenagers so trained form a nucleus for expanding the regular training system in time of war.

OFFICERS WHO ACCOMPANIED

The Chief of Staff on his recent visit to Russia saw numerous evidences of the pride the Soviets take in their auxiliary organization. While no precise knowledge of the organization itself was forthcoming, the participation by DOSAAF personnel in the Red Air Force Day show was acknowledged in various ways. The show program, printed in English, gave the names of DOSAAF pilots who were flying many of the aircraft in the show and DOSAAF flags were flown from street pillars along with those of the Soviet Air Force.

Briefly, there is every reason to believe that the Soviets clearly perceive the value of retaining aviation skills to the fullest extent possible and of utilizing them in the broad air-age education program of their nation.
